Caliente Resort is Removed from the American Association for Nude Recreation

The American Association for Nude Recreation, the oldest, largest and most credible organization supporting social family nude recreation, has removed Caliente Resort of Land O'Lakes, Florida, from its organization.

This action was taken following the temporary suspension of the club's charter because of marketing practices inconsistent with AANR's principles and standards. In a letter to its clubs dated July 11th, AANR reaffirmed its expectations of clubs holding an AANR charter and the resort responded by relinquishing their affiliation.

"We regret that it was necessary to issue the suspension that led to where we are today," said John Kinman, AANR President. "Caliente is a beautiful resort, and AANR was a strong force behind its initial development and growth. However, no club is more important than the principles we have advocated for over three quarters of a century."

The Caliente charter came under investigation when the club registered to have a booth at an adult trade show, Swingfest 2008. This is entirely counter to AANR's advocacy of social family nude recreation and its rejection of any attempt to associate its good name and reputation with sexually exploitive purposes. Club management offered some concessions, but their PR Director is still scheduled to lead a workshop advocating co-existence between swingers and nudists.

"As a husband, father of four and an employee of the Association, this is not a message I could accept," said Erich Schuttauf, AANR's Executive Director. "AANR clubs represent the best in healthy clothes-free living and recreation, for all ages."

AANR has been an aggressive advocate for nude recreation rights and a strong promoter of public education. "When we speak to legislators or contribute to positive mainstream media recognition including the New York Times, Today Show, Time Magazine, and others, they know AANR has earned the reputation as the credible voice for nude recreation," said Schuttauf."

AANR's mission is to advocate nudity and nude recreation in appropriate settings, and educate and inform society of the value and enjoyment of such through on-going member growth. It is the credible voice of reason, representing the millions of people who enjoy clothes-free recreation and nakationing throughout North America.
